LOWER PRICES PREVAIL

The Stock Market Opens With Declines in Every Quarter.

Third Avenue Brops From Yesterday's Figures-Sugar Refining and Steel Industrials Evince Substantial Pressure - Trading in the Knilway List of Small Volume.

NEW YORK, March 7.- The Stock Market opened rather heavy, particularly as regarded the industrial quarter, where declines were con non. Sugar Refining was considerably weakened. There was subconsiderably weakened. There was substantial pressure evident in American Steel and Wire and the other so-called industrials. Another conspicuous feature of the market was Third Avenue Rai'road, which was deelt in at a substantial decline from its closing figures. The dealings in the railway l'st were in small volume, and the price changes were more limited, but were generally in the lirection of lower figures. limited, but were generaly in the direction of lower figures. St. Paul and the grangers reflected a moderate amount of pressure.

Aside from the current discussion regarding the status of the dividend on Sugar Refining and the further conjectures as to the upshot of Third Avenue affairs there was little gossip bearing upon particular stocks. The feature of the dealings was the noteworthy activity in the bond department where the transactions were large and well diversified and where a firm tone was evident. The passage by the Senate of the Finance bil after the close of business yesterday, while regarded with satisfaction, was not an active influence in the dealings. The London Stock Market again showed higher prices for American stocks and there were moderate purchases here for foreign account, but the latter were not in volume sufficient to affect prices.

The market was inconsequential this morning, with few transactions and those of no significance. Prices in the spectalties tended downward but not in such a way as to indicate more than yet y and the such a way as to indicate more than yet y and the such as way as to indicate more than very apathetic professional selling. The grangers were fairly strong in the same innocuous fashion. Careful market critics look for improvement in the standard railway securities in the near future though at the moment the lever that will be need to life members of moment the lever that will be used to lift the market out of its dullness is not clearly in evidence. It may be the passage of the Currency bill or the surrender of Joubert. The bears say that if the Sugar Company were to change its mind and pay a 2 per cent dividend, if the grangers were all to advance their dividend rates, and if Kruger were to sue for peace today the professional traders would be discounting a bad bank statement before the close of the market tomorrow. And in the intensely stupid market of the past month despite so many good developments there is undoubtedly some basis for this pessimism. Money rates were pushed up a trifle yesterday and there is the probability of this occurring again at any time now, but any actual stringency is probably out of the question. The Currency bill is looked forward to by the Street as the solution of any danger of this kind. the market out of its dullness is not clear-

Prices even in the most active special-ties hardly moved enough to indicate which way they were going. Sugar sold off fractionally during the first nour, but was supported around 96 in su; ha way that it was impossible to foresee whether the decline was to be continued or not. The bears are confident, however, on ac-count of the cut of 10 cents per hundred pounds by the trust and imm-diately thereafter by the independent companies. It seems very evident that the war is to be pushed bitterly. The bulls call attenbe pushed bitterly. The bulls call atten-tion to what looks very like inside buy-ing and predict that the low price has been reached in the stock.

Woodland, He Says, Should Be Con sidered as to the Lumber Sapply and Effects Upon the Climate and Flow of Streams - Original Growth of Trees in the Country

In a pamphlet on "The Forests of the United States," issued by the Geological Survey, Henry Cannett, Chief of the Division on Forestry, says: "The woodland nd forests may be considered from two points of view-as a source of lumber supply and as a physical factor with effects upon climate, erosion, and the flow of streams. As a source of lumber supply, the forest is, to all intents and purposes, an agricultural crop, differing from most other agricultural products in the fact that it requires a long time to reach maturity generations-while other crops require only months or, at most, a few years.
